

FACTSHEET

Performance Returns

Conquest STAR UCITS Fund returned 0.26% net in May for the USD Institutional Founder class.

Investment Objective & Strategy

Systematic absolute return strategy focused on capturing independent alpha from short-term trading opportunities regardless of the risk environment in both “risk-seeking” and “risk averse” regimes. The fund employs 4 sub-strategies using a dynamic risk allocation based on the Conquest Risk Aversion Index. The strategy provides geographic and asset class diversification by trading in over 30 liquid global futures markets including currencies, equity indices, and fixed income with no correlation to traditional portfolios, hedge fund portfolios, and CTA portfolios.

Monthly Commentary

Volatility in global markets were driven by continued geopolitical risks with the Trump administration’s rhetoric and corresponding actions regarding trade, Italy’s new populist government, and the uncertainties that remain in the Korean Peninsula and Iranian denuclearization efforts. Global equity markets were largely net positive with fixed income falling as the dollar strengthening against a basket of a global currencies. Geopolitical risk is likely to continue to be felt most keenly in FX markets. Overall, the benign markets of last year, which saw both bond and stock prices drifting gently upwards on a monthly basis, seem firmly behind us and should be a good opportunity to maintain a position or add to investments in short-term trading strategies like Conquest STAR UCITS.

Conquest STAR UCITS Fund Performance

Conquest STAR UCITS gained 0.26% on a net basis in May with gains in currencies and fixed income offsetting a loss in equity trading. Currency gains were concentrated in the euro and yen crosses as the US dollar had its largest monthly rally since November 2016. The FX reversal was captured by the trend-following and short-term trading sub-strategies which were likewise profitable within fixed income, where trend-following captured the continued rise in rates in the first half of the month and short-term profitably navigated the subsequent European-led risk-off rally.

While May registered as a risk-averse month, and volatility continues to revert to historical norms, equities trading was unprofitable due to the bullish reversals on May 3rd and May 30th, where most of the month’s negative P&L was concentrated within the short-term trading sub-strategy. As a function of the risk environment, risk-capture weights were reduced throughout the month, accounting for a muted positive return for that sub-strategy.
